

Dear CMDs:

The MDCB directors recently convened their summer meeting to conduct the business of the organization. At the meeting, many important decisions were determined about the future of the MDCB exam. Key among these is the change of date for the 2011 exam.

In response to the needs of the medical dosimetry community the 2011 exam will be administered in the month of September as a computer based test. The test date is September 17, 2011. Previously, the test was administered as a paper and pencil test annually in conjunction with the AAMD Annual Conference in June.

The board will continue to review the best means to deliver and schedule the MDCB Certification test.
